NEW TRIAL APPEAL REFUSED BY COURT

Counsel For Powers To Carry Appeal To Circuit Court

(International News Service)

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Dec. 12.—Harry F. Powers, "Bluebeard Slayer" of Mrs. Dorothy Lemke, Northboro, Mass., widow he wooed through the mails, will die on the gallows next March 18, between sunrise and sunset.

Sentence of death was pronounced upon the pudgy "Mail Order Romeo" today by Judge John C. Southern in Harrison county court here today when a motion for a new trial, filed by J. Ed. Law, defense counsel, was overruled.

Plans Appeal

Law announced immediately that an appeal would be carried to the circuit court.

Powers, led from his cell in the county jail to hear his doom, was unmoved as Judge Southern read the decree of death and fixed the date for the execution.

Unblinking behind his heavy spectacles, Powers stared at the Judge, looked about the court and sat down.

He made no comment.

Makes No Comment

The "Bluebeard" slayer was then led back to his cell while Law filed notice of his intention to appeal.

Judge Southern gave defense counsel 60 days in which to file the appeal to the circuit court.

The courtroom was packed an

PA NEWC OBSERVES

"Highland Heights" is the suggestion of Mrs. Fred Donaldson, as a name for the section just beyond the city that for many years has been termed "Coaltown." Mrs. Donaldson lives on the Heights, and believes that this would be an exceptionally fine name for the district. It appears to Pa Newc that the only thing needed for changing the name of this locality would be for the residents of the section to get together and agree on the action. There are a large number of residences in the vicinity, and it would be a boost for the community if the name was changed. Pa Newc believes. Get busy "Highland Heights" residents!

There was a nice balmy feeling in the air this morning, which was almost springlike, but will probably be changed over the week end as weather reports indicate colder temperatures.

The rain which fell yesterday was one of the most beneficial we have had in some time, and should assist in starting springs to flowing again. Almost an inch fell between midnight Thursday and midnight Friday, and following on the heels of lighter rains will aid in moistening up the ground.

Pa Newc might have written another obituary for the paper tonight—it would have been an auto driver. Last night at East street and

TESTIMONY IN KANE CASE IS COMPLETED

By Dorothy Ducas
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COURTHOUSE, Hampton, Va., Dec. 12—The case against Professor Elisha Kent Kane, 3rd, was completed at 11:24 this morning.

After recalling various members of the Graham family in an attempt to refute the story the professor himself told in the witness stand, the prosecution rested. A short recess preceded the summing up of the evidence for and against the charge that the professor wilfully drowned Jenny Graham Kane, his wife, at Grand View beach last September.

The parents of the dead girl, her brother, her brother's wife, her sister and her sister's husband came back to the stand to denounce point by point the statements the defendant had made about them. But as they spoke, their eyes bright with hostility, it became more and more apparent that one thing the profesor said, anyhow was true. His "in-laws" today at least have a marked hatred for him.

"Hop" Graham, the brother, especially betrayed his feelings, pausing in his testimony once to glare at the accused man across the counsel table.

HUNDREDS CROWD CHURCH TO ENTHUSE OVER PROHIBITION

First M. E. Church Is Packed To Limit On Friday Night

Dr. Daniel Poling Rekindles Enthusiasm Of Supporters Of Dry Era

Climaxing three days of intensive work by the Allied Prohibition Campaigners, Dr. Daniel A. Poling, nationally known minister and head of the Campaigners, spoke to a crod estimated at 2000 in the First Methodist Episcopal Church Friday evening.

The crowd ranks with the largest ever to attend a meeting in First M. E. The auditorium was full, the Sunday School room was full and even the balcony of the Sunday School room with its restricted view of the platform, was full. Oliver W. Stewart, vice chairman of the Campaigners alos spoke.

Dr. Poling was the attraction, undoubtedly, and yet the cause he represents was a magnet that drew hundreds. It was a rather convincing demonstration that Prohibition is still believed in, in New Castle and Lawrence County, and that people in this vicinity do not want it removed from the Constitution.

Powerful Speaker

Powerful in physique, Dr. Poling is a powerful speaker also. He drives home his message with a force and a vitality that seems to electrify the very air and after hearing him one can understand his nation-wide popularity and the success the Campaigners have been having.

Booked to open at 7:45, there were few seats available in the auditorium at 7:30 and by opening time it seemed that every available seat was filled. Judge R. Lawrence Hildebrand, president judge of the Lawrence County Courts was the chairman of the evening. Opening his remarks he said that the cause bringing the crowd together was an old one. "Unfortunately" said he, "after Prohibition came in, friends of the cause seemed to settle back with a smug satisfaction to enjoy the fruits of their victory. As a result old General Apathy has been in command, and if he has not been in command personally in Lawrence County in the last few years, he has delegated his authority to a officer no lower in rank than a colonel."

Rev. D. C. Schnebly, pastor of the Mahoningtown Presbyterian Church opened the service with an invocation, and the Christian Endeavor Quartette sang a number as a court-

Another Slow Day With Mayor's Fund

Contributions to the Mayor's Relief Fund were again slow today only a few dollars being added to bring the total to $4612.34.

In addition to money, the Relief Fund is accepting usable clothing, which is being distributed along with the food at the Carnegie Auditorium. Clothing may either be left at the auditorium or the Salvation Army, who are turning over their clothing to the Mayor's committee.

Administration Not In Favor Of Debt Cancelling

Secretary Mellon Hurries To Present Administration's Side Of Debt Program

FORMAL REPLY IS MADE TO CRITICS

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Answering congressional critics of the administration's foreign debt policy, Secretary Mellon, in a formal statement today, declared the opposition of the government to cancellation.

"There should be no misinterpretation as to the administration's recommendations to congress relating to the debts due us from foreign governments and the recreation of the World War debt funding commission," Mellon said.

"The administration is opposed to cancellation. No recommendation made carries any such implication."

Mellon added, however, that it is the duty of those in authority to deal with realities. He said there is no escaping the fact that some of the debtors cannot meet in full the payments due until there has been a substantial measure of economic recovery the position of others, he pointed out, "is so changed as to call for consideration of their present situation in the light of existing circumstances."

Attention was called to the situation in Great Britain. Mellon said the pound sterling is selling at $3.315, a discount of 32 per cent as compared with last year.

When the house was rushed the convicts were found dead. The warden was dangerously wounded and the three other escaped convicts, all wounded, were recaptured.

(International News Service)

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 12.—The "auction marriage market" here held one less prospective bride today.

Pretty Marguerite Lennon, 18, of Beechview, announced she would withdraw her offer to wed any "respectable American" who would pay her parents $10,000.

A week ago, Miss Lennon made her offer of marriage and immediately became the recipient of scores of proposals, from men who offered everything from a plain, ordinary job to the $10,000 asked and a new name.

"When I did it," the pretty young woman said today, "I thought it was a good way to carry the family over the depression. But I've had so many telephone calls and letters asking me not to do it I've decided to give it up."

Mystery Unexplained As To Possession Of Weapons By Prisoners

(Bulletin)
(International News Service)

LEAVENSWORTH, Kan., Dec. 12—Earl Thayer, the remaining uncaptured convict of seven who escaped from the Federal prison yesterday, was reported by the sheriff's office to be surrounded by a searching party of 50 prison guards southwest of here today.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., Dec. 12.—An ominous tension blanketed the "Big House" today. It was the taut calm that followed the Federal penitentiary's most violent insurrection marked by the death of three fleeing convicts, the recapture of three others, the abduction and wounding of the warden and the disappearance of a seventh prisoner.

Beneath the still surface of military order official activity seethed as the authorities began gathering up the loose ends of the bloody outbreak. Several mysterious aspects of the prison break remained to be solved, not the least of which were:

Many Questions.

(1) Where and how did the six freedom-seeking convicts obtain their weapons?

(2) Who shot and killed three of the escaping prisoners in a hotly besieged farmhouse, eight miles from the prison?

(3) Who shot and wounded Warden Thomas B. White?

(4) Where is Earl Thayer, the

Stewart Speaks First

Hon. Oliver W. Stewart, vice chairman of the Allied Campaigners, a former member of the Illinois State Legislature, and a member of the famous Flying Squadron was the first speaker of the evening.

He opened his address by saying that the governmental task faced by the people today is as monumental a one as that faced by Washington. The task of Washington, he said, was to found a federal government where thirteen states existed. The task today is to maintain that government and pass it on to the generation following us.

Comparing the days of Washington with today, Mr. Stewart said that the old time pioneer and the pioneer community have disappeared. The radio, the telephone, the automobile have brought people closer together and have at the same time destroyed that family and small community to the extent that the group opinions once formed by them are gone.

"Putting the 18th Amendment into the Constitution was a battle" declared Mr. Stewart. "Keeping it there is no less a battle and the crisis is here, now. Those of us in the Allied Campaign are making a tour that will carry us up to next June, just before the national political conventions. We find sentiment arousing and chrystallizing in favor of Prohobition and when the political leaders of the nation start making their platforms next June, we will be able to whisper quietly to them, better take a look at the Dry Army."

Believe In The United States

Following the collection, Dr. Poling was introduced and launched into his address with little introduction. "We believe in the United States" said he. "We believe in the Eighteenth Amendment, because we believe in America on the march. Conservation of forests and rivers is not the highest duty this nation has, but the conservation of men and women and children is."

"We do not believe that Prohibition is the only issue or that candidates and parties should be nominated and elected merely because they favor the Eighteenth Amendment. We must face the problems of poverty and unemployment, we must accept our share of the economic burden. We must go forward unitedly to destroy war and to perfect the machinery of peace."

"Prohibition did not create the speakeasy, it merely uncovered it. Those who point to the Canadian system as our way out will do well to read the speakeasy record of the Canadian plan. The Canadian plan can never be made an adequate substitute for the 18th Amendment. We do not believe it will survive in the Dominion of Canada. Authoritative governmental reports show a steady and great increase in the number of arrests for drunkeness, in bootleggers and in speakeasies and more significant,an increase in drunkeness among women."

Beer And Prosperity

"We do not believe that legalized beer will bring back prosperity. In the top year for the trade before prohibition, less than 500,000 men were employed in the entire beer enterprise. Of these, 400,000 were connected with distribution in saloons but practically every Wet declares against the return of the saloon. Today more men and women are employed in the soft drink department of drug stores, in fruit juice stands and in delicatessens than were ever employed in the whole liquor traffic."

"Prohibition is not responsible for the racketeer. Chairman Wickersham of the commission which bears his name says, racketeers existed before prohibition came into effect. It will be ended as soon as we have builded our political government miles deeper into the earth. Attorney General Mitchel states that at the outside, not more than 20 percent of the racketeering is associated with illicit liquor distribution and sale."

"In the field of enforcement, conditions are steadily better. The leadership of Colonel Woodcock and his associates is getting results. For certain of the Wets, these gains are not pleasant to contemplate. But Prohibition at its worst is immeasurably better than license ever was at its best."

"We believe in American youth and we bring to you the word that they are rallying behind the banner of this great crusade. We believe in Prohibition because we believe in America on the march."

Dr. Poling's address closed the whirlwind campaign conducted here by the Allied Campaigners in the past three days. The work of the campaigners was to light the torch of reaffirmed faith in the constitution. The duty of the friends of prohibition here now is to carry on that wohk through the medium of the organization which is forming and this will be done.

A great leader is one who happens to be on the job when the people act sensible and prosper.

Law, seeking to save the "Bluebeard" from the gallows, laid his greatest emphasis today on objections made during and before Powers' trial. He based his contention for a new trial on refusal of Judge Southern to grant a change of venue, reiterating his argument that Powers was the victim of a prejudice so strong he could not get a fair trial and reopened arguments presented during the trial to the selection of jurors.

There was no demonstration in the courtroom when sentence was pronounced and the crowd which jammed it melted away a few minutes after Powers was led back to his cell.

GRIST MILL COMES BACK

THE old-time grist mill seems to be returning to the American landscape once more.

An eastern newspaper revealed the other day that in many places, especially in the south and southwest, farmers are adopting their grandfathers' custom of taking their grain to a little neighborhood mill, getting it ground into flour or meal, and returning it to the family cupboard.

It is a long time since the grist mill has cut much of a figure in American life. In the old days, of course, it had a big place. It was the center of innumerable frontier communities, and the bread that the farmer ate was made from grain he raised.

Lately, though, the grist mill had become a picturesque ruin. Almost every small town in the south and middle west had as its momento of bygone days, a tumble-down structure, rapidly falling into decay, by some ancient millpond on the edge of town. The railroad and the big flour mill pushed the grist mill almost entirely out of the picture.

If it is coming back now, even in a small measure, it is probably due to the depression; but in a lot of ways it is an extremely sensible step for the farmer to take.

The average wheat grower never so much as sees a flour mill. He sends his grain to the market and buys his flour at the nearest grocery store; and when wheat prices are down—as they are, most of the time—he suffers.

Suppose, though, that there is a grist mill in the neighborhood. The farmer, then, not only is producing a commodity for the market; he is raising the very grain that he and his family eat, and they will have plenty of bread even if the bottom falls out of the wheat market.

Perhaps, in a time when agricultural distress seems deeply rooted and of endless extent, the country could use the old-fashioned grist mill to a pretty good advantage.

IS IT 15 YEARS AHEAD?

The manager of a large middlewestern airport the other day declared that, contrary to popular opinion, commercial aviation in the United States is "at least fifteen years ahead of commercial aviation in Europe."

This, he said, applies both to equipment and service. Night flying on passenger lines, he said, is still confined to North America; and he added that most of the patrons of the European lines are American tourists!

All of this is rather surprising, in view of all that we have heard about Europe's "supremacy" in the air. Overseas, apparently, military aviation is still the branch that gets most of the attention. Aviation in the United States has definitely established itself commercially, and has already made an amazing good record for service.

MARSHES FOR BIRDS

Ten new sanctuaries in nine states have recently been established by the Migratory Bird Conservation Commission through purchase of 43,227 acres of land in the east, south and west. The refuges have been selected with two points in mind, the prevalence of hunters and the need of food and shelter for birds in seasons of drouth or bitter weather. According to the Biological Eurvey, hunters' guns are not much more destructive than lack of food and cover. For this reason much marshy land is included in the newly acquired acreage, since it provides seclusion, abundant food and water even in a dry season.

Authorities maintain that the international treaty covering the protection of migratory birds is directly responsible for saving certain game species which would already have become extinct without it. From that point of view it is to the hunter's advantage as well as to the bird's and the naturalist's.

RULES MAY BE LIBERALIZED

One of the happiest results of the new alignment in the house of representatives will probably be a liberalization of the rules which govern deliberations.

For many years the house has been bound by rules under which there was little freedom of debate and little chance for any neature to gain serious consideration unless it had the approval of a small group of house leaders. The cause of representative government suffered.

Now, with a more nearly equal division of the parties, control will be less strict. We may get more debate than we need, but in the main the results should be beneficial. After all, congressman go to Washington as representatives of the people.

IOWA AUTOS AND CORN

One of the most interesting bits of statistics presented recently comes from Robley Winfrey of the Iowa State College engineering experiment station, who has discovered that Iowa's annual automobile bill exceeds its annual income from the famous Iowa corn crop.

Thus, in 1930, the people of Iowa spent more than $290,000,000 on their autos. The average income derived from Iowa corn comes to about $255,000,000.

Just what may be the significance of all this—if, indeed, it has any significance—is not quite clear. But it is, as we say, interesting. It illustrates in a graphic way the thoroughness with which a great agricultural state has become motorized.

RISE IN FRENCH POPULATION

French census figures give the country a population of 45,835,000, an increase of 1,100,000 since 1926. Of this 400,000 was in foreign residents, but even so there is no sign of a diminishing birth rate, of which at one time or another much has been said.

The total foreign population is 2,891,000—a less proportion, probably, than in most other countries. Thus France remains a distinctly homogeneous nation. Here is at least one source of her strength. Unlike many of her neighbors, she has no difficult problem of minorities.

A Picture on the Wall
White Roses, a Silvery Frame
And One Man's Thorny Life

By MARSHALL MASLIN

I walk through a door. I take off my dripping overcoat. I turn and see, across the dark room, a picture shining in the dim light, and making everything beautiful with its presence.

It is a big picture in a silvered frame. White and green against a luminous background. A mass of white roses in a dark green jar. That's all—just roses in a jar—painted by a man more than forty years ago. There they are, cool and lovely and alive, moving lightly between the silver edges of that frame.

Not an "original," but the print of a picture, perfectly made by artisans across the sea in Germany, but showing every brush stroke, every shade of paint, exactly as the master put them there.

* * *

And when I see that cool and lovely painting, I see beyond the white roses in the green jar and I see a man. I see him sad, I see him tortured, I see him mad, with a wild light in his poor eyes, I see him at peace at last.

He was a strange fellow, the man who painted those roses. He was poor, he was driven by something he could not see, he suffered agonies in the 37 years he lived on this earth. Not many understood him; few, indeed, knew what he was trying to do. He worked in dark coal mines, he lived in huddled and shabby houses, at times he was close to starvation, he did strange things. When he was very young, once he wrote to his brother.

"Within myself I feel an urge to do something. There is something in me; what is it? . . . I feel in me a fire I cannot extinguish."

He taught himself to paint. He fell madly in love with the earth, with common human beings. He loved beauty and lived with a drab woman. He wanted to be kind, but once he cut off his own ear and sent it in bloody wrappings to a woman who had offended him. He had a friend and tried to kill him. He spent many an hour in a madhouse and at last he took his own life. But this poor creature was a noble human being.

Wildly he painted. He painted a shabby chair, a meager room, lemons on a table, sunflowers, the postman, cypress trees, an old peasant woman, a blue cart in a green field, bridges over still canals, sprawling towns, boats on a seashore, the white glare of houses, the weighty blue of the sky, the shimmering brown of the plowed earth, the hot splendor of southern France.

Desperately he tried to set it all down before dark death closed in upon him. He was aflame, and his trees writhe in the wind as they writhed before his hungry eyes. He was mad and he was beautifully sane. He was tortured, but he was at peace. He knew that his life was a desperate struggle with death and he wrote to his brother:

"I hope that these thorns will in due time bear a white flower and that this struggle, apparently sterile, is nothing else than the labor of child-birth. . . . First sorrow, then joy."

First torture, then blessed release . . . First that thorny life, and then those fair white flowers in the silver frame, on the wall across the room.

* * *

I see those flowers shining there, and I face a man. I see that wonderful, mad Vincent Van Gogh, who would not go down into his cool dark bed until he had made the blazing color and hot splendor sweet beauty of this earth immortal for people like you and me.

Just Folks

By EDGAR A. GUEST

PERVERSE HUMAN NATURE

Man is an animal perverse
When work is plenty, work's a curse
And roused to toil at break of day
In bed he thinks it's sweet to stay.
But when by fate compelled to shirk
He grieves because he cannot work.

Man bound by duties swears that he
Much rather would an idler be,
He thinks it cruel and unjust,
While others play that work he must,
But take his tasks from him away,
He finds no pleasure in his play.

The whistle blows. With curses deep
Man envies those who longer sleep,
But let the factory shut its door
And call the man from bed no more,
Ere many days shall come and go,
He'll wish to hear that whistle blow!

So strange is life, so strange is man,
He yearns to rest who seldom can.
He frets at toil when he is tasked,
But given the long vacation asked,
Ere long among his fellowmen
He yearns to be at work again.

Bible Thought For Today

SAFE STEPS:—The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delighteth in his way.—Psalm 37: 23.

RUNS IN THE FAMILY

While crossing a common an old woman noticed one of those men who go around jabbing a pointed stick into scraps of paper to gather them up.

"Stopping beside him she said, kindly, "Don't you find that work very tiring?"

"Not very, mum," replied the man. "You see, I was born to it—my father used to harpoon whales."

It would soon be over, he looked at the pistol, fingered the trigger and sighed. Why must it all end? Why did not Time stop in its eternal flight? He looked about him—a sea of faces—hilarious—hardly realizing that in a few moments he would end it all. Why did they stare at him so? He'd show them—the pistol! That was it. He raised it toward his head, took a last deep breath and fired! A woman screamed: the football game was over!

It's remarkable how easy ten thousand dollars can get away especially from those who have no idea of what it is and offer themselves for that measley amount of plunder.

Ought to think.

You will find that those who fail
Do not think.

Do not think.

Trouble brewed for you and me
Probably would never be
If we'd think.

Vice President Curtis Gives Aid To Prophets By Decision

Public Views His Announcement Of Candidacy For Renomination With Varying Comments On Prospects For 1932

Announcement by Vice President Charles Curtis that he will seek renomination for his present office in the Republican convention is received by some observers as a possible indication of his estimate of the political trend. Many think it is evidence of his belief that the national ticket faces a more promising field than the party candidate who may seek the senatorship from Kansas.

"Mr. Curtis proved a valuable man on the Republican national ticket in 1928," declares the WASHINGTON EVENING STAR (Ind.). "If he is renominated, as the leaders of his party expect him to be, he will be an asset in 1932, lending strength in a section of the country which has been hard hit by the agricultural depression." The LEXINGTON LEADER (Rep.) is convinced by the fact that "he is willing to make the race with Mr. Hoover," that he is "a loyal party man and faithful to the fortunes of the president." The ASBURY PARK EVENING PRESS (Ind. Dem.) sees him as, by his action, having "cast a belated vote for the Hoover administration by deciding to stick by it." In fact, "the Curtis decision might be regarded as a sharp stroke in politics, for it rather solidifies the movement for 'Hoover again'," thinks the CHARLOTTE OBSERVER (Ind. Dem.).

"There is no certainty that the Republican national convention will offer him the nomination," according to the SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) UNION (Rep.), "yet there are reasons why he should have the honor. He has conducted himself very creditably in the office and has made a popular and efficient presiding officer. He has been popular with the farmers of Kansas. He may serve to counteract the recent Democratic swing in that state in a presidential election. Despite all the talk of replacing him with a younger man, a more progressive man or one slightly moister, it seems to be in the cards that Mr. Curtis shall run again."

"Mr. Curtis, it is true," asserts the CHICAGO TRIBUNE (Ind. Rep.), "takes a gamble, not only with what the national convention will do but, against greater odds, with what the people will do. It is not improbable that in the convention any one who is willing to run on the ticket next year as Republican candidate for vice president will be regarded as a game stalwart and will be given the job with the acclaim of his fellows, a warrior of stout heart."

"The Curtis preference does not necessarily settle the choice of a Republican candidate for vice president," asserts the ESCANABA DAILY PRESS (Rep.), and the NEW LONDON DAY (Ind. Rep.) points out, "It is interesting to note that Vice President Curtis, if nominated and elected in 1932, would be the first Republican vice president to serve two terms. Since 1856 only two men have been nominated twice for the office by the Republican party."

As to the reason for his final choice between running again for the senate from Kansas and accepting renomination to his present office, the LOUISVILLE COURIER-JOURNAL (Ind.) remarks: "The interpretations, according to point of view, hopes and prejudices, will range from suspicion, surmise and conjecture to reasoned speculation. The secret of the impelling motive remains locked in a bosom impenetrable to political X-rays."

"Had he decided upon the senatorship, Democratic leaders would have hailed it as evidence of lack of faith in the ability of the Republican party to win," says the NEW CASTLE (PA.) NEWS (Rep.) as it notes that Mr. Curtis "has refused to give them the opportunity that they had hoped for." The LYNCHBURG NEWS (Dem.) analyzes the matter as follows: "The Republican interpretation is that Mr. Curtis after long consideration and after careful study of the field, decided to accept a renomination for vice president, because convinced that Hoover would be re-elected and it would be foolish for him to drop the bone in his mouth in order to snap at another. The Democratic interpretation is that Mr. Curtis, after a visit to Kansas, decided that no Republican, not even Curtis, would have any chance of being elected to the senate from that state, and that it would be more agreeable to be defeated for vice president, because the president was unpopular, than to be defeated for senator because he had lost his hold on his fellow Kansans. And Mr. Curtis, they add, knows all about the situation in Kansas."

On this question of the defection of Kansas, the MINNEAPOLIS STAR (Ind.) concludes: "Kansas concludes: "Kansas must be in much the same political frame of mind as Minnesota if Curtis' chances with Hoover look better than they would be running by himself in his own state." The SIOUX FALLS DAILY ARGUS LEADER (Ind. Rep.) remarks: "Possibly he concluded that the nation is more likely to go Republican than Kansas is," since "Kansas is in a surly mood, due to the low price of wheat, and shows a disposition to feel unkindly toward the powers that be in Washington."

That "significance is attached to the fact that Mr. Curtis, in his announcement, failed to mention President Hoover or that his decision was in conformity with the wishes of the president," is the assertion of the SCRANTON TIMES (Dem.). On this point, the HAVERHILL EVENING GAZETTE (Ind. Rep.) remarks that "what Hoover thinks of the Curtis candidacy probably is known only to Hoover himself." The CHARLESTON (S. C.) EVENING POST (Dem.) suggests that Mr. Curtis' decision "must mean, of course, that Mr. Hoover is willing to have Mr. Curtis as his running mate, and if that is so, perhaps Mr. Curtis' nomination is also assured."

But is the nomination of Mr. Curtis assured? The AKRON BEACON JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.) thinks not, declaring: "In making this decision Mr. Curtis has not taken account of the habits of a national convention. What if next year's conclave does not want him, and gives the nomination to another?"

As to the importance of the office of vice president, the ALTOONA MIRROR (Ind.) says: "Some folks affect a mild sort of contempt for the vice presidential office. Yet the chances are that not one of the carpers would turn his back upon it if it were really offered to him." As to the potential possibilities that always hover over it, the DAYTON DAILY NEWS (Ind. Dem.) points out that "the United States has elected 31 vice presidents. Seven automatically succeeded to the presidency." The HARTFORD DAILY TIMES (Ind. Dem.) remarks: "The Kansan former senator has had a career worthy in many respects, but has never disclosed statesmanly caliber. Not for a moment would the country consider electing him to the presidency. No longer than is now necessary should it be so that he might become president by chance of fate, as Coolidge succeeded Harding and Roosevelt followed McKinley."

Commenting on the fact that "Vice President Curtis will be 72 years old on January 25 next," the SPRINGFIELD (MASS.) REPUBLICAN (Ind.) claims that a "vice president has no reason for existence unless he is an able-bodied substitute for the president, and no man can take up the heavy burden of the presidency in the plentitude of his strength and with the full promise of success in the years following his 73rd birthday." On the other hand, the SIOUX CITY JOURNAL (Ind. Rep.) thinks that the "main thing, however, as time passes and the campaign approaches will be Mr. Curtis 'ability as a vote-getter for the ticket. The ticket will need votes, plenty of them." The DALLAS JOURNAL (Ind. Dem.) declares that "the word from Mr. Curtis should put an end to further suggestions of new candidates for his post, and make it possible for them to give attention to questions of greater importance to the party."

ENTERTAINING

You may think your wife is not enough of a good fellow.

Other men have "little parties" at their homes but you cannot entertain as they do because your wife objects to certain "refreshments" served.

Also she objects to the noise and the late hours these men keep.

You like such gatherings and accept invitations to them.

You feel that you cannot act as host at the same sort of entertainment and you know that they are talking about your acceptance with no effort on your part to reciprocate in kind.

They have a right to talk.

If you do not return their hospitality in the same spirit and kind you have no business to accept their invitations.

However, there are other ways of showing your appreciation of their thoughtfulness of you besides "throwing a party."

There is no law against you doing something original to pay your social obligations.

And you need not cause a row to entertain your men friends at home.

Use your head and find some way to return the attentions of your associates before they think you are one of a variety of grafters.

ABE MARTIN — On Degeneratin'

TH' COUNTRY HOTEL

"Ther's no institution in this country that has degenerated as rapidly an' as thoroughly as th' country hotel," declared Lafe Bud this mornin'. Whether it's because o' better railroad service, th' long distance telephone, th' interurban, or what, th' fact remains that th' modern country hotel is jest about as homey an' cheerful as a skatin' rink at five o'clock in th' mornin'. In towns wher' ther's only one hotel it is atrocious, an' where ther's two th' rivalry between 'em as t' which kin be th' most abominable is intense. Us travelin' men often eat at a grocery an' walk around all night t' avoid 'em. I can't do good work an' stop at 'em. Th' ole time hotel with its cheery office an' human clerk, an' Garglin' Oil staionery, musty parlor, an' pianner, soft, fat beds, bounteous meals o' hard, macaroni soup, floatin' island dessert, eggs, steak, tea, coffee, iced tea, or milk, an' general air o' hominess an cleanliness is a thing o' th' past. Th' ole time ruddy landlord with a liberal girth an' hearty handshake an' market basket on his arm an' his vest spotted with bean soup, is no longer. He's been supplanted by a cold, calculatin' stone man with th' bearin' of a morgue-keeper, who makes a feller feel jest about as much at home as a grasshopper in a show case.

His rooms smell like th' inside o' a stiff hat, his beds are flat an' unresponsive, his pillers are filled with straw, an' his mattresses are filled with shavings; his blankets are cotton, an' his floors are covered with cheap, odoriferous mattin'. His wall paper is sheddin' an' even th' springs o' his curtain rollers have expired. Th' country hotel office o' t'day is filled with vendin' machines. A wrong clock surrounded by ads hangs over th' writin' desk. Th' cigar case is filled with strange 8-cent cigars, an' th' clerk is a feller that failed at ever'thing.

But you don't have to leave a call when you sleep at a country hotel. You'll be up anyhow. Most country hotels only bed you an' you're supposed t' eat at a Greek cafe with a coal-oil range next door. But if th' dinin' room is operatin' it's only worse and more of it. Th' modern country hotel is merely a shelter house with a register an' a clerk, thick ink, an' a prehistoric pen."

"I've jest returned from a long automobile trip," said Tell Binkley, "an' th' only bad luck I had wuz stayin' all night at a country hotel."

GIBBONS AT MUKDEN; WEATHER BITTER COLD

Correspondent Reaches Scene Of Action After Three Weeks Travel

Gives His First Summing Up Of Situation As He Views It

By FLOYD GIBBONS
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service

MUKDEN, Dec. 12.—Hello everybody.

Here we are in Mukden at last after three weeks travel by train, boat and plane from New York and things are sure popping right off the bat.

It's bitter cold, or at least it seems so to me, and the city lies under a white blanket of snow, the first heavy snow fall of the season.

Japanese Shivering

Everybody's muffled up in fur coats and hats and felt boots except the Chinese ricksha coolies hauling loads through the streets. They are wearing cotton shoes and blue pajamas and I even saw one with last year's flat straw hat and fur earmuffs.

At that, they don't look as cold as the Japanese civilians who are unaccustomed to this climate and are visibly shivering.

Retirement of Shidehara as foreign minister is the biggest subject of debate in all circles, military, civilian, Japanese and foreign. Neutral observers here believe that the prime minister's withdrawal foreshadows rearrangements of the army's defensive lines in Manchuria.

Chinese Army Scattered

Here's the dope as I gather it on the first grab:

The three capitals of the three provinces of Manchuria are now in the hands of the Japanese army. The Chinese army and bandits numbering more than 200,000 are scattered all over the country with their real leader, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang sitting pretty in Peiping.

But through his lieutenants he is making a last stand out in eastern Manchuria, just north of the Great Wall which bounds China proper.

The center of this stand is the railroad town of Chinchow which Chang designates as his new capital, having been run out of the other three.

The Japanese army declare chinchow forces numbering 30,000 menace their railroad and the entire peace of Manchuria and, as military men, they desire to remove this menace.

A Japanese army of occupation in Chinchow would eliminate the last capital of the former Manchurian government within the borders of the old province and entire military control would be in the hands of the Japanese army.

Situation Changes

It is believed here that Shidehara gave pledges to foreign governments to the effect that the army would not occupy Chinchow. Foreigners are now asking whether Shidehara's loss of office will force the army to relinquish places which it deems necessary for defense, or whether disruption of the old cabinet will relieve the army of occupation in Tokyo and remove the last obstacle to the execution of its plans.

All are agreed that now it's up to the army to make some move, either backward or forward, and but few here believe it will be backward.

While this question is being decided I am shopping for an interpreter and heavier underwear and praying for peace, at least until warmer weather.

NEVER LOSE AN OPPORTUNITY

To help a weaker brother, for therein our own strength increases.

To speak a kindly word, for it will soon echo in your own ears.

To lift a friend, for thereby you strengthen your own arms.

To attempt the impossible, for sometimes it is accomplished.

To feast your soul on the beautiful, for that is God in thin disguise.

To strengthen any impulse you have toward the noble or sacrificial.

To gather new information, for that is the raw material out of which wisdom is made.

MY NEW YORK

BY JAMES ASWELL

(By Central Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Commuting is a habit gradually formed, long nurtured and difficult to break. Your confirmed commuter, finding himself by a freak of fate living next door to his job, would walk around the block several times each morning before punching the clock.

After careful study and the consultation of many heavy volumes, I have reached the conclusion that the commuting instinct is dormant in many men. A year or two in New York will always bring it to full flower.

Nothing is more vain than trying to point out to one of these "remote control" fiends that he spends an appalling percentage of his waking hours on a train, ferry or subway seat. For example, an acquaintance of mine who owns a house so far upstate he must arise at half after five in the morning in order to get to the office on time, spends two hours and a half daily in transit or in waiting rooms.

This amounts to 60 hours, roughly, or about 10 working days a month. In a year he has consumed at least a third of his entire business time in the process of being carted back and forth to work. And he likes it.

Low rents, fresh air and play space for the kiddies, plenty of room and rooms, have been advanced by the commuting fraternity. I suspect it is something else—the feeling, at the close of each working day, that a long journey lies ahead; a journey away from all the defeats, irritations and overwhelming monotony of the job in which he must pretend to be interested all his life long.

And that is justification enough.

STATESMAN

Ann Lord of Oklahoma City writes: "I don't know how you've gotten along without taking notice of 'Alfalfa Bill' Murray . . . All that is needed for a Murray-for-president headquarters is a vacant telephone booth, one in each state.

"He plays a good hand at bridge. "He can't whistle, but can make clever sounds drinking both coffee and soup. He boils 'em in oil and makes 'em like it."

APPROACH

The famous producer of revues whose parties are elaborate and spectacular wanted to throw a soiree which would last until far past dawn. And he wanted the roster of the town's most imposing names to be his guest list.

Nothing if not ingenious, the host called the wives of all the noted men he sought for his soiree and said:

"Good morning, maddam. Will you be a good sport and let me have your husband for one night? This is a rather unusual party and can only be held with the consent and tolerance of ladies like yourself. I promise you your husband will return to you not later than nine o'clock of the day following. Are you game?"

Believe it or not, the party was well attended.

THE CHILDREN'S CHRISTMAS

CHRISTMAS is our greatest holiday for the little ones. They will receive many gifts. Why not this year give each of the children a Savings Account here?

It is the one form of present that will be more valuable next year than this Christmas. It will grow in value from the interest and compound interest we add to it—it will teach the children useful habits of savings—and will be of both financial and educational value to them.

German-American Alliance

It seems that little Dan Cupid is a better hand at fostering good will than all the diplomats who are striving for international amity, his latest stunt resulting in a German-American alliance. Here is Consul William E. Beitz, of the U. S. Consulate at Berlin, with his bride, the former Fraulein Waltraut Elizabeth von Gohren, daughter of the late Admiral von Gohren of the German Navy, shown after their marriage in the German capital. The bride is also a niece of General Cuno von Steuben, head of the famous family whose ancestor assisted the American colonists in their war for independence.

Woman to Seek Solitude In Alaskan Wilderness

* * * * * * *

Philadelphia Society Matron, Tired of Civilization, Will Leave Three Children and Spend Six Months in Arctic Waste.

Declaring herself weary of the rush of civilization and resolved to seek solitude, far from the maddening crowd, Mrs. Edward M. Biddle, prominent in Philadelphia society and mother of three children, is planning to spend six months in Central Alaska, a frozen wilderness near the Arctic Circle. Mrs. Biddle will make the long, hazardous journey alone except for a dog driver and is equipped with a camera and several guns, being proficient in the use of both. Her route, shown by dotted line on map above, will take her up the little known Porcupine River to a desolate point where she will live with the native wife of Mike Cooney, a trapper. The Eskimo woman is the type to which Mrs. Cooney belongs. The amateur explorer denies that her voluntary exile has any scientific significance, asserting vehemently that she only wants to be alone. Well, if it's only solitude she's after, she's going to the right place; for it's the most abundant commodity in Alaska.

Love Me, Love My Horse!

"And everywhere that Mary went—" might be paraphrased to "the horse was sure to go" in the case of Antoinette Sharp, of Dallas, Texas, who is a freshman at Wellesley College, Mass. When Miss Sharp came up to study at the exclusive school she could not bear to be parted from "Shorty," her favorite cow pony, so she brought the lucky equine along. She is shown with the collegiate steed, all dressed up in real cowgirl style, ten gallon hat and all, as she gave him a little exercise in the first snow storm of the season.

Enter the New Muff

Straight from the Rue de la Paix comes this suit, accompanied with a matching muff. Both are of velvet heavily trimmed with Persian lamb, as is the smart little turban.

Changed Smile

The triumphant smile that Lowell Bayles is wearing in this picture, made as he landed after his record-breaking speed flight at Detroit, Mich., changed to one of resignation when he learned that one of the timing cameras, which would put the official seal on his newly made record, had failed to function. Bayles hurtled his plane over a three-kilometer course at 284.72 miles an hour, but camera accident bars official recognition.

Dates and Studies

Studies and dates are mixed to perfection by this Ohio State university co-ed, at Columbus, Miss Charlotte Whiteford of New Philadelphia, O. She finds time to have many dates and still retain a brilliant scholastic record. That's why Miss Whiteford recently was named the outstanding sorority student of the university by the Pan-Hellenic association.

Putting Over Diamond Deal

Tragic Figure

Daniel S. Gilday, 65-year-old dry reformer, is a tragic figure as he ponders on the shooting of Herman Knol, 17, in jail at Chicago while awaiting the outcome of the youth's injury and a court hearing to determine on his release. Four state witnesses have accused Gilday of drunkenness at the time of the shooting.

Feared Dying

Ironic fate played its part in the injury through which John Szymanski, Fordham University grid star, is lying in a critical condition in Fordham, N. Y., Hospital. After Cornelius Murphy, who has since died, was injured in the Bucknell game, Szymanski was sent in to replace him and sustained the hurts from which, it is feared, he is dying. With his entire left side paralyzed, little hope is held for the boy's recovery.

Heads Vets

Selected by war veterans of Delevan, Illinois, to be commander of the American Legion post in that city, Mrs. H. W. Brink is the first woman to be so honored. Solons Felicitate Curtis on Race

Vice President Charles Curtis is shown in his office at Washington receiving the felicitations of Senators over his decision to seek renomination for the Vice Presidency. There was some intimation that Curtis might be a candidate for Senator from Kansas, but this was cleared up when he definitely announced himself as a running mate of President Hoover. Left to right: Senator James Watson, of Indiana; Vice-President Curtis; Senators Samuel Shortridge of California; Reed Smoot of Utah; Arthur Capper of Kansas, and Simeon Fess of Ohio. Most of the Senate G. O. P. leaders are in group.

USE A WANT AD

Lawrence County Farms And Farmers

By H. R. McCulloch, County Agent

Orchard Equipment Requires Attention.

Lawrence county fruit growers may find time now to reduce next year's costs by checking up on their picking, packing and storing equipment.

Very often bushel baskets, bushel crates, apple boxes and barrels worth from $30 to $50 may be found in the buildings, sheds and basements of the average fruit farm. All good sound containers may be put away until next season. Badly broken packages and those beyond repair can be used for kindling or for parts of those containers capable of being repaired.

A sure way of making a good day's wage is in the repair of barrels, boxes and baskets. As a rule, it does not pay to spend some time on black, dirty equipment of this sort, nor is this necessarily the best season of the year for repair work. Actual repairing may be done more conveniently later in the season when weather conditions do not permit pruning work. However, careful storage of ladders, picking bags, nail boxes, barrel headers, stencils, rubber stamps, ink pads, metal facers and packing forms should not be delayed. Any equipment not in good order should be set aside so that it may receive attention later in the winter.

Special care must be exercised in the storage of picking bags, rubber stamps and ink pads. Mice will cause serious damage if they come in contact wtih these articles. The best methods of handling the stamps and pads is to place them in an empty tin can or similar closed receptacle. Bags may be hung over a suspended wire to prevent the rodents from building nests in them and chewing holes in the cloth.

Limes Vary in Form and Oxide Content.

Different kinds or forms of lime vary primarily in their relative strength. The strength is measured by the guaranteed analysis which the law requires on the bag.

To compare two forms of lime, add together the calcium oxide and magnesium oxide, since calcium and magnesia do the same work in the soil. This total oxide is the measure of value. The analysis sometimes is expressed in calcium and magnesium carbonate. To reduce carbonate to oxide, multiply by .56. To find the cost of one per cent of total oxide in either of two forms of lime, divide the total oxide into the cost per ton.

With coarsely ground limestone 50 per cent heavier application should be made. Since it is necessary to make the dollar go as far as possible, one should buy lime and fertilizer wisely and not give too much weight to imagined preferences and prejudices. Careful experiments have failed to prove one form of lime superior to another where the same amount of total oxide per acre is furnished.

Legume Hay is Good For Poultry Flock.

Roughage has a place in the diet of the poultry flock.

Chicken growers who have alfalfa hay available are finding it a good practice to place a supply in the hen house each day. The birds are allowed to pick off the leaves. Second growth clover or well-cured soybean hay may be used, although alfalfa doubtless is more valuable than the others from a vitamin standpoint. The hay can be put in baskets made of poultry netting and placed either along the side walls or hung from the ceiling.

Cabbage and mangels also have a place in the poultry ration. Although they are not absolutely necessary for satisfactory results. The amount of these succulent feeds should be limited to about five pounds a day for 100 hens in order to eliminate the possibility of cutting down on the consumption of mash and grain.

Winter Short Courses Will Begin January 4.

Winter courses in agriculture and dairy manufacturing will open January 4 at the Pennsylvania State college. These courses are intended primarily for those who cannot spend longer periods in training but who desire to obtain the latest information and practices.

In the agricultural courses which run for eight weeks, instruction will be given in 32 subjects in the fields of animal husbandry, forestry, dairying, vegetable gardening, fruit growing, farm crops, poultry husbandry, flower culture, agricultural engineering, plant diseases, insects, soils and rural life.

Three dairy manufacturing courses of two weeks each will be offered. These are testing dairy products and the manufacturs of butter and cheese, January 4 to 16; ice cream making, January 18 to 30, and market milk and milk control, February 1 to 13.

Special work will be given to those who want to fit themselves for positions as testers in dairy herd improvement associations.

A card to Dean R. L. Watts, school of agriculture, State College, Pa., will bring an illustrated catalog of the courses.

67 Bull Associations Own 242 Dairy Sires.

Sixty-seven bull associations in the state now have 695 members who own cooperatively 242 purebred dairy sires.

In the herds of members there are 5023 daughters of association bulls, and during the past year 266 sons of association bulls have been sold to head the herds of other dairymen in the state.

Cooperative ownership has reduced the cost and made it possible for many dairymen to use the very best bred sides. Without such a plan they could not afford to use these desirable bulls, says R. R. Welch, dairy extension specialist of the Pennsylvania State college.

Bull associations provide for joint ownership of three or four good sires by as many individuals or groups in each association, he explains. These sires are exchanged at the end of a 2-year period and thus are kept in service until proved by the records of their daughters.

Sires used in Pennsylvania bull associations, Welch points out, are nearly all sons of cows having yearly production records of 700 or more pounds of butterfat and are backed by many other high-producing animals.

Daughters of these association sires generally show the value of superior inheritance by their increased production over that of their dams. Welch tells of one association sire whose record is typical. Last year 11 of his daughters had yearly records computed to a mature basis which averaged 17,036 pounds of milk and 533 pounds of butterfat. The yearly mature equivalent records of the dams of these daughters averaged 10,648 pounds of milk and 330 pounds of butterfat.

The Civic League, which is an organization of colored people of the city, met Thursday evening in the Elm Street Y. W. C. A., with Frank Wagner, the president, presiding.

The type of work that the Civic League is doing is the same as that of the local branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and can be done better by that organization because it has the backing of the national office. After much discussion it was decided to discontinue the Civic League, and the money that remained in the treasury was donated to the following agencies: Mayor's Relief Committee $10.00, Community Chest $10.00, Salvation Army $3.50.

Federal Workers May Be Placed On Five-Day Schedule

Drive Opens In Congress To Place All Government Employes On Five-Day Week

(International News Service)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—A drive to place all government workers on a five-day week as an example to industry will be launched as soon as congressional committees are organized.

Bills providing for the five-day week already have been introduced in both senate and house. Senator Brookhart (R) of Iowa, proposed a five-day week for mechanics and other skilled workers while Rep. Granfield (D) of Massachusetts proposed a five-day week for all.

Other bills directed to the same end are slated to be introduced within the next few days.

Congress took a long stride toward the five-day week in the last session when it granted government workers a Saturday half-holiday the year around.

Lenz And Jacoby Further Increase Bridge Games Lead

Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson Off Stride Friday Night, Make Costly Errors

Lenz And Jacoby Excited As Net Score Reaches 7,030 During Evening's Play

(Following is the description of last night's play in the bridge "battle of the century" especially written for International News Service by Mrs. Josephine Culbertson, originator with her husband of the approach-forcing system of contract bidding. Mr. and Mrs. Culbertson are opposed by Sidney S. Lenz and Oswald Jacoby in the match.)

By MRS. JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player
(Copyright 1931 by International News Service)

NEW YORK, Dec. 12—The last rubber in last night's session of our match against Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby was one of my interesting experiences at the bridge table. My husband engaged in a bidding duel with our opponents which resulted in our scoring more than 2000 in sets. The rubber ended with a plus six hundred for us although technically it was won by our opponents. This is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that our opponents opened the rubber by bidding and making one of their numerous slams.

Both Mr. Lenz and Mr. Jacoby semed to be extraordinarily excited by the fact that they had raised their net score to 7030 points as the result of their lay down slam and began to make rather incautious bids. Apparently Ely instantly detected their state of mind and with a series of adroit feints and counter thrusts, timed beautifully when our opponents were off guard. He scored many a 'touch."

Makes Costly Errors

In spite of his brilliant bidding and playing on this last rubber, Ely was really below his usual standing, he was a top and bottom player. During the evening he made three costly errors. His play might be summarized in the following equation:

Costly errors and genius in spots equals the under-average.

I make bold thus publicly to criticise my husband because, alas, my errors last night were even more costly.

For instance, I managed to make a lead out of turn against a slam declaration, opponents, according to the rules, forced my partner to lead a suit of their own choosing and, as a result, a little slam was made by them which could never have been made had I not been so anxious to show my ace of hearts. The only good car I had.

Against another game contract by opponents I suddenly got frightened right in the middle of the hand and started to swap horses, I mean suits: as a result another beautiful wasted ace was photographed by the press and is now adorning my drawing room.

It is true our errors were few, but they were very costly and too well distributed. The errors of our opponents were quite numerous but they could easily afford them. They were bidding on the crest of the wave, with honors galore. In fact, I believe they were a bit demoralized by their good fortune. It is my observation that prosperity is, if anything, more demoralizing then depression.

The following hand is an illustration:

The bidding:

		1 N. T.	Pass
2 Clubs	pass	pass	2 hearts
Double	pass	2 N. 5.	pass
Pass	double	pass	pass

I consider my pass of Mr. Lenz's no trump bid better strategy than a bid of either suit. I was lying in wait for more no trump bidding from our opponents, who were vulnerable and subject therefore to several penalties if we could set them. When, however, Mr. Jacoby bid two clubs I bid two hearts, Mr. Jacoby's double was for penalties and Mr. Lentz's take out was fortunate for us as we could have been penalized. Instead opponents lost six hundred points

We also scored a fine result on the eighth hand of this last rubber.

Bid Made Slam

We bid and made our first slam on the 141st deal. It was significant in a number of ways. It was the first opening forcing bid of two in a suit by either my partner or myself. To reach the only makable slam, in clubs, it was necessary for my husband to give up 150 points for his four aces. The distribution of the hand, so clearly indicated a suit declaration, however, that this was no sacrifice at all. A slam could not have been at no trump as a study of the hand clearly reveals.

At the end of the first hand of the final rubber, Lenz and Jacoby were ahead by 7030 points, but suffered set backs during the remaining play.

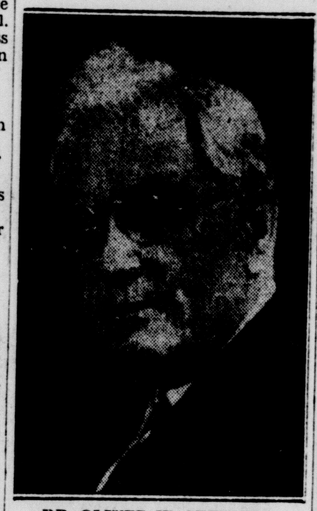
Stewart Says 'Wets' Answer Own Questions

Almost Waste Of Time To Point Out Inconsistencies Of Dry Opponents

SPEAKS AT MEETING FRIDAY AFTERNOON



DR. OLIVER W. STEWART

Addressing an audience of approximately 500 Friday afternoon, Oliver W. Stewart, one of the speakers of the Allied Forces for Prohibition, told of the inconsistencies of the opponents of prohibition, and the fact that it is almost a waste of time to answer them.

"If you leave them go far enough, they will answer their own arguments," he asserted. "We might ignore them entirely if it were not for the fact that the jurors on this great question will be the ones who never saw an old-time saloon."

"They object to prohibition on the grounds that the government should give due respect to state boundaries, and that it invades the state rights when it assumes to forbid the liquor traffic without reguard to the wishes of the people. Their argument is based on the theory that the constitution delegates all police power to the states. Therefore the government should leave all purely local matters and the use of all police power to them.

"Yet the Federal government is exercising police power in many lines all the time. It does not delegate police powers to the states alone. And if they permitted states to have local option at the vote of the people, the government would be police power in keeping men sober.

"They say it is better to be drunk and free than to be sober and a slave. But only the sober man is free, the drunk is a slave to his appetite. If there was no drunkeness there would be no liquor problem. Drunkeness comes from getting drink and man together.

"Lots of people associate prohibition and temperance together as one and the same thing. Temperance is trying to keep man away from drink. Prohibition is keeping away from man. The nation is getting ready to end this question once and for all and they are not going to reach a state of equilibrium by letting down the bars to the liquor traffic.

At the conclusion of Mr. Stewart's address, Dr. Daniel W. Poling spoke briefly about the movement of the Allied Forces and how it is growing. He stated that Prohibition has not corrupted the young people of the nation and that it was unfair and un-American to indict the young people for the shortcomings of a few.

Dr. Poling stated that we owe it to our young people to set a good example, as many young people follow in the footsteps of their parents, either for good or for bad.

Bugle And Drum Corps Is Being Organized At Ben Franklin Junior High

Keen interest is being shown by the students of the Benjamin Franklin junior high school in the bugle and drum corps which is being organized by Miss Evea Coulter, supervisor of the instrumental department.

Both girls and boys are eligible for the corps and already 25 buglers and 30 drummers have signed up for membership. They are furnishing their own bugles and drums. Some already have their instruments—others will have theirs after Christmas.

Those who have their bugles and drums will meet on Thursday afternoon, December 17, after classes, for organization.

Anyone who has either instrument may enter the corps—regardless of whether they can play or not. The organization is expressly for beginners and instruction will be given. The reason for this new group, Miss Coulter explains, is because students have many more drums than can be accommodated in the school bands and orchestra

For the present the bugle and drum corps will meet once a week. It is believed that this is the first time Benjamin Franklin junior high school has ever had such a group.

The Parent Problem
by GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Treatment Of Stutterer Advocated By Dr. Myers Builds Child Up Bodily

Calm, Poised Parents, Lack Of Noise, Excitement, Good Diet And Routine Habits Aid Stammerer

By GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education, Cleveland College, Western Reserve University.

What I have written on stuttering for my next book may be of interest to the readers of this column:

"It may be that an occasional adult stutterer is helped or actually cured by mechanical treatment, such as rhythmical breathing, phonic and vocal exercises, where the instructor can gain the complete confidence of the patient. Even then the effect is primarily psychological, no doubt. Also an occasional adult is aided temporarily by his friends who, at the moment of greatest difficulty, ask him to wait or go slowly. But the younger the person the less good can come from such treatment. Certainly nearly all stuttering children under ten or twelve are greatly harmed thereby.

"Of course you say that an occasional stuttering child does seem to get help from mechanical drills. So he may. But when he does, there will be a relapse unless the emotional conditions under which it had arisen and had been re-enforced were corrected."

We parents have the greatest responsibility for preventing stuttering, and the greatest opportunity to correct it. Virtually every child developing speech stutters some. All surely are potential stutterers. When the child stutters, you and others in his presence are inclined to turn your eyes upon his mouth. This response emphasizes his awareness of the difficulty, causing him to grow worse. Train yourself not to look at him then, but to act as if all were well. Provided you face him at all look right into his eyes with an air of assurance.

In case you know the word he is laboring to say, give it in a most casual manner. Train all your friends to treat him in this fashion. Don't tell him to repeat; don't say "wait" or "not so fast." Merely listen patiently, with the suggestion that everything will come out all right, that he needs feel no haste. Prove in his presence that you have perfect poise and calm. To this end train yourself to speak in soft, quiet tones, avoiding excitement and unnecessary noise. See that the child does not become agitated and greatly fatigued.

Build up in the stuttering child a strong, healthy body, with ample rest, relaxation and sleep, good diet and eating habits, and other routine habits so that he takes care of himself as much as possible, with a minimum of supervision and a maximum of independence.

* * *

Virtually always the stutterer is considered even by the layman as a nervous child. He may be malnourished. Work hand in hand with your physician to build him up physically. Once the physical conditions of the child are properly cared for, the speech expert will be most successful, as a rule, if he has no further contact with the child but effects remedial treatment through the parents, the teacher and all others who have part in his guidance.

Treat stuttering in the child as an emotional difficulty. Consider it a personality problem. Anything you do to cultivate a comfortable and likeable personality in the child will help save him from stuttering and, once afflicted, help him to recover.

New Gold Rush Seen In Decade For Black Hills

Scientific And Intelligent Effort Forecast By Mining Expert

RAPID CITY, S. D. Dec. 12.—A new gold rush, but scientific and intelligent as compared to prevous frenzied fights for the yellow metal was predicted today for the Black Hills within the next decade by Bancroft Gore, department head of metalurgical engineering at the School of mines.

Because the mining of other ores is being retarded due to over-production, interest in gold mining is becoming more and more concentrated, Gore said. He said that less activity is forecast in the mining of copper, lead, zinc and other minerals and that this activity will be transferred to the mining of gold.

With the increased interest in gold mining in this country, the Black Hills will come in for its share of activity, Gore said.

"Everything is now ripe for such an increase," he declared. During the war and right after the war many mines were forced to shut down because of the high price of lobor, but now labor and materials are cheap, and companies will take advantage of mining properties, Gore said.

Fifteen years ago there were a number of mining properties in the Black Hills, including the Trojan, the Maitland and others that were producing several thousands of dollars in gold every year and now, these companies and others like them will take advantage of low operating cost and improved equipment and willresume activity, Gore said.

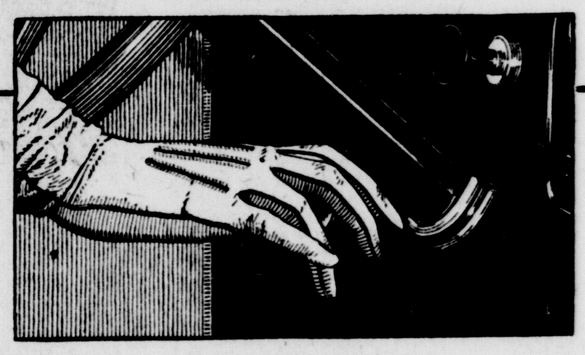
CHEVROLET

The first and only low-priced car with

Syncro-Mesh Shift and Free Wheeling



ONE of the biggest driving thrills in modern motoring is now available at one of the lowest prices in the automobile market. Syncro-Mesh is combined with Free Wheeling in the new Chevrolet Six!

This is the first time that these two outstanding inventions have been brought together in a low-priced automobile. Syncro-Mesh is the most advanced type of transmission ever developed. Free Wheeling is that new sensation which adds so much to the zest of driving. The two make a matchless combination! They bring about an entirely new kind of driving ease and car control, far beyond anything you have ever enjoyed. They give you quick, quiet shifting and complete mastery of the car under all driving conditions. They enable you to do things in driving that are impossible without both these features.

If you prefer to drive in "standard" gear, Syncro-Mesh enables you to shift back and forth with uncanny speed, silence and precision. This is particularly desirable when descending steep hills or traveling slippery streets. For it enables you to use the engine as a brake, instantly, without slowing down the car.

Then, suppose you want Free Wheeling. Simply press a button on the dash. Thereafter, and until you pull the button out again, you Free Wheel. You coast along with a delightful gliding sensation. And you shift with never-to-be-forgotten ease.

The Free Wheeling mechanism of the new Chevrolet Six is a highly simplified type. Instead of a complicated mechanism with many moving parts, it is a simple, sturdy unit, with only three moving parts.

Then, along with Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling, Chevrolet offers you 60-horsepower six-cylinder performance, higher speed, faster acceleration, greater smoothness, smarter Fisher bodies, matchless economy, and a first cost that is among the lowest in the market. Certainly it's the great American value for 1932.

The new Chevrolet Six combines the advantages of two inventions . . . Syncro-Mesh and Free Wheeling . . . to assure quick, quiet, easy gear-shifting and positive control of the car under every driving condition

LOOKING BACK
IN NEW CASTLE

The history of New Castle and Lawrence county teems with the names of men who went forth to battle valiantly in behalf of their country at many different times. The pioneer history records the coming of not a few brave men who had seen service in the Colonial Army. By the time of the war of 1812, Lawrence county was populated by a hardy class of people, whose patriotism caused many of them to go to the front. Two companies were raised in the vicinity of New Castle, one captained by John Fisher and the other by James Hamilton. They rendezvoused at Mercer. The man saw service in many different organizations. Some were called to Erie. A portion of them were with General Cook's brigade, which went from Pittsburgh in the fall of 1812 and joined General Harrison's Army on the Sandusky and Miami rivers. During this war the people on the frontier of which Lawrence county was a part, were in constant fear of invasion by the British and the Indians. Numerous block houses were erected as places of refuge in case of attack. One of them was built in 1813 in this city at Mercer street and Apple Alley north of Washington street. It was a very substantial structure of logs and stood for many years.

High Players Score Success

"Thirteenth Chair" Is Presented In Auditorium Friday Evening

CAST DOES WELL WITH MYSTERY PLAY

ELLWOOD CITY, Dec. 12.—The Senior A Class play, "The Thirteenth Chair" was a decided hit as a fine audience heartily applauded the efforts of the young high school actors who in a most surprising manner kept their audience on edge until the final curtain and the climax, at the Lincoln auditorium Friday evening.

The directors of the play, Miss Elizabeth McKnight and Miss Mary Elizabeth Braham should receive high praise for scoring this second hit which was entirely a different form of entertainment. All high school plays previously were comedies. "The Thirteenth Chair" is a type of a play much more difficult for students to put across. It was only after many diligent hours of study and practice that brought the surprising results last night.

The play featured a plot that was well executed. Every character accounted for himself notably, even more so of Virginia McDonald who had a most difficult role to perform. She played the part of Madame Rosalie La Grange, the spiritualist, who conducted a seance that resulted in a murder. Her costume and makeup added to weirdness of the scene.

Miss McDonald showed Inspector Tim Donohue, played by Robert Jones, how detecting should be done. Her methods were also weird but proved to be most effective. She brought about the confession and arrest of the true murderer. Before the climax several persons were under suspicion which finally narrowed down to one, but it was the wrong one.

The plot had its base in two murders, the second occurring while investigations were being made on the first. It had been previously arranged to conduct a seance which was to have forced a confession from the murderer of Spencer Lee. As a name was about to be revealed Edward Wales, the would be investigator and a friend of Spencer Lee, was murdered in the dark while the seance was being conducted. It was finally narrowed down that the murderer of Wells was also the murderer of Lee. From then on Inspector Donohue had his hands full apprehending the true murderer. He was about to arrest Helen O'Neil, the daughter of the spiritualist for the crime when the true facts came to light and Phillip Mason, portrayed by Charles Zeigler made a confession after a most trying time.

Helen O'Neil and Will Crosby played by Lillian Henderson and Donald Gordon respectively furnished the romance which was a bright spot.

The play involved every member but three policemen in the plot. The cast successfully kept the true murderer hidden until the end. Every role was important and only added to the mystery.

Before the last act begun, the directors and several of the characters were presented flowers by their class members.

The complete cast was as follows:
Helen O'Neill—Lillian Henderson.
Will Crosby—Donald Gordon.
Mrs. Crosby—Charlotte Brown
Roscoe Crosby—James Gaskell.
Edward Wales—David W. Aiken.
Mary Eastwood—Lillian Oswald.
Helen Trent—Louise Caplan.

Howard Standish—James Van-Gorder.
Philip Mason—Charles Zeigler.
Elizabeth Erskine—Phyliss Newton.
Grace Standish—Viola Bookamer.

Rotary Night Party Finds Club Ladies Managing Program

Let the ladies have their way—

Well, it wasn't a case where they consulted their husbands when the wives of the New Castle Rotarians took it upon themselves last night to pilot a program of their own liking in The Castleton, at which not a Rotarian dared interrupt with a word.

President L. B. Round, who customarily presides at the speakers' table with Secretary Carl E. Paisley, found his place filled by Mrs. Round when the banquet time came. The secretary's chair was occupied by Mrs. Paisley. So it was, officers and all stepped out as the Rotary Anns succeeded them.

From the time dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock until the time for games to commence later in the evening, the low toned, deep voices of the Rotarians were missing. Of course, when game time came, along came those familiar voices.

The group sang the Doxology before dinner.

When the diners had enjoyed the tasty menu, Mrs. Round took charge and for a while the Rotarians were kept in fear as the ladies asked and answered personal questions about them. For each question there came a sure answer.

During the program Mrs. Carl Paisley, acting in her husband's capacity, read the Rotary roll. She called each of the 67 members by their first name from memory.

Mrs. Round also welcomed the clubmen to "the ladies' meeting".

Little Miss Katherine Wilcox, who was present with her grandmother, Mrs. Benjamin Hoover, this city, gave several enjoyable recitations. The guests heartily applauded her.

Sharing a large measure the success for sponsoring the unique meeting were the program directors, Mrs. Charles T. Metzler, Mrs. DeLace Cole and Mrs. B. H. Kanenberg.

They supervised the early part of the evening's entertainment and helped direct the amusing games which followed, during which Carl E. Paisley, Dr. L. W. Wilson, John Offutt, Mrs. J. F. Rentz, Mrs. Lee McFate, Mrs. E. E. Seavy, Mrs. W. G. Eckles and Mrs. Howard Richards won prizes.

Mrs. Kannenberg and Mrs. Jesse C. Cooper were directly in charge of the games.

The entire committee on arrangements, working with Mrs. Round, the general chairman, included Mrs. E. E. Seavy, Mrs. Frank Fischer, Mrs. C. T. Metzler, Mrs. Fred Rentz, Mrs. Howard Richards, Mrs. Carl Paisley, Mrs. DeLace Cole, Mrs. B. H. Kannenberg and Mrs. J. Lee McFate.

Needless to say, the men were only guests.

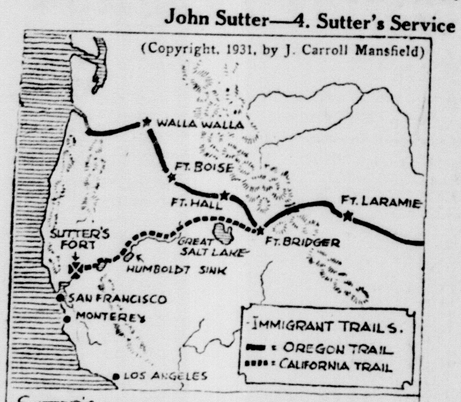
John Sutter—4. Sutter's Service



SUTTER'S AMBITIOUS PLAN OF FOUNDING A NEW NATION ON THE PACIFIC COAST NEVER MATERIALIZED, BUT HE RENDERED VALUABLE SERVICE TO THE AMERICAN IMMIGRANTS WHO IN THE EARLY 1840'S HAD ALREADY BEGUN TO SETTLE IN NORTHERN CALIFORNIA.

THE HOSPITABLE SUTTER GAVE SHELTER TO THE PASSING IMMIGRANTS AND FURNISHED THEM WITH SUPPLIES AND GUIDES. THE MEXICANS WOULD HAVE DRIVEN THESE UNWELCOME STRANGERS OUT, BUT WERE AWED BY SUTTER'S CANNON.

SUTTER WIELDED A POWERFUL INFLUENCE OVER THE INDIAN TRIBES NORTH OF SAN FRANCISCO BAY. MANY RED MEN CAME TO LIVE NEAR SUTTER'S FORT, JUST AS THE INDIANS FARTHER SOUTH CLUSTERED AROUND THE MISSIONS.

SUTTER SAVED THE LIVES OF MANY IMMIGRANTS, BECAUSE FEAR OF HIS VENGEANCE DETERRED THE INDIANS FROM ATTACKING THE PASSING WAGON TRAINS.

Southern Cal. Is Favored To Beat Georgia Eleven

Southern California Team Will Outweigh Georgia Team In Coast Game Today

(International News Service)

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 12.—Outweighed 10 pounds to the man in the line, and 20 in the backfield, the University of Georgia today relied on speed, "Catfish" Smith, and Dixie pluck as the team faced the University of Southern California in an intersectional football game in Olympic coliseum.

Smith, crack left end, has been ill, was reported in fairly good condition, and he will have to be in order to stop Troy's power plays which in the main are aimed at the left side of the opposition's line.

U. S. C.'s starting line-up is the same that faced and defeated Notre Dame. Georgia's line-up in the main is the one that played through a strenuous season with only one defeat, that suffered from Tulane which plays U. S. C. in Pasadena's annual rose bowl game New Year's Day.

Sixty-five thousand fans were expected to see today's game.

St. Mary's Tops Grove City Five By Score 32-13

St. Mary's Basketball Team Takes First Victory Of Year On Home Floor

JONES-UHLE ARE STARS OF GAME

The St. Mary's basketball team finally broke into the winning column, and it happened at the St. Mary's auditorium last night when they subdued the Grove City merchants 32 to 13. It was a fine game despite the lopsided score. The visitors never threatened the Saints.

Francis Uhle and Charles "Bub" Jones stood out brilliantly in the victory for St. Mary's with seven of the baskets between them, and in addition played bangup defensive basketball that had the invaders worried. Only two baskets were made by the Grove City forwards.

The end of the first quarter found the Saints ahead 12 to 4. The score at half time was 18 to 8 The visitors could not locate the hoops, being guarded too closely. On the other hand Jones, Uhle and Kulich were dropping them in for the Saints.

Saints Open Up

In the third quarter the Saints opened up with another fast passing attack that netted them ten more points to four for the visitors. The score at the end of the quarter was 28 to 12. In the final period Coach Fraser placed his entire reserve team in the game and they held the Grove City boys to a lone point while making four points themselves with Rowe caging a field goal. The team work of the Saints as a whole was excellent last night. For the Grove City team the work of Clouden, Falls and Hall was the best.

On Monday night the St. Mary's team will play the St. Ann's of Farrell at the local floor. The St. Mary's girls will play the prelim at 7:30 o'clock with a team of St. Ann girls.

"Cold" Football Men Ones Liable To Suffer From Serious Injuries

By FRANK G. MENKE
International News Service Sports Editor.

CHICAGO, Dec. 12.—If the football powers adopt a rule limiting number of substitutions, they automatically will halt the killings and the cripplings in gridiron conflict.

Any analysis of the holacaust of 1931, and also the carnage of 1930, shows the majority of men who have been carried off the field were those who had just swung into action after sitting for a long time on the benches where they were chilled and became stiff and rigid.

A "fresh" man in any athletic sense is a brittle human. No player is immune to injury until such time as he has worked up a perspiration and his muscles are functioning smoothly and his frame has become pliable.

Licked When Cold.

More men are knocked down or cut in the prize ring in the first round than any other. This is due entirely to the fact that they are "cold" when action commences, they have not worked up a perspiration, they cannot stand a shock and, consequently, collapse with the first stout punch. What is true in the ring is likewise true in any combative sport—and it applies specifically to football.

Coaches have condemned the kickoff simply because most of the accidents have come during collision following a kickoff. But the kickoff is not to blame. The same number of accident would continue to happen even if scrimmaging was the whole part of the game, if the substitutions are continued.

In the opening kickoff all men who swing into action are "cold". Thus they are in danger of being crippled or killed until such time as a few plays have limbered them up, brought on a perspiration and made them "rubbery".

Dick Sheridan of the Army came on "cold" as a sub against Yale after a score had been made. A new kickoff followed. He was in the play. There was a crash of pliable bodies against his that had become rigid from the inactivity of sitting on the bench and Sheridan's neck cracked and he went to his death.

Many Are Crippled.

During the football year I have seen seven men carried off the field with broken legs, arms or necks. And six of these were "fresh" men, boys who had just been sent into action and were as brittle almost as glass.

So long as coaches are permitted to rush in as many substitutes as they may decree, and thus risk the life and the limbs of those boys, then for just so long will football be a devastating sport. But if the number of substitutions is limited, and if a way can be devised to give all subs a chance to warm up before action, the same as relief pitchers are warmed up in baseball, the fatalities will be tremendously reduced.

St. Andrew's To Battle Wesley At St. Mary's Floor

The St. Andrew's church basketball team will pry off the lid tonight at the St. Mary's auditorium floor, by meeting the fast Wesley M. E. team. The game starts at 8 o'clock. This is the initial effort of the St. Andrew's team in New Castle and they are anxious to make a good showing. Coach Tommy Evans has a strong lineup ready for the tussle.

The Wesley M. E. team leads the New Castle Church League, and they will be worthy opponents for the St. Andrew's quintet.

Good News, Jerry?

Having just heard from his doctor the good news that the injuries he received in the game against Michigan State will be healed in time for him to take part in the New Year's Day classic against the University of Southern California, Jerry Dalrymple, All-American star of the unbeaten Tulane team, is shown grinning happily as he prepares to attack the contents of the tray on his bed. Jerry is in a New Orleans hospital.

Battalino Wins From Singer By Knockout Punch

Featherweight Champion Knocks Out Former Lightweight Champion In Second Round

By LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sport Correspondent

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Christopher (Bat) Battalino, rugged featherweight champion, was the sensation of the fistic world today as a result of his quick knockout over Al Singer, former lightweight champion, in the second round of their scheduled ten-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night.

The swarthy Italian, astounding a capacity crowd of 20,000 fans in his new role as a killer, scored a technical knockout over the New York idol in 1:31 of the second round after flooring him five times.

"Bat" qualified for a lightweight championship bout at the Garden next month with Tony Canzoneri, two divisions above him in the fistic scale. He has high hopes of becoming a triple titleholder by beating Canzoneri and then winning the junior lightweight crowd from Kid Chocolate.

Charity Receipts Tally Over $700

Alec Samuels States That Over $700 Was Realized From New Castle-Union Game

Although an official check has not been made yet due to the fact that there are several members of the committee who have failed to turn in tickets and money, Alec Samuels, the chairman in charge of the benefit game between New Castle and Union played last Saturday stated that the receipts will be over $700.

Probably Monday Mr. Samuels will know exactly how much was realized from the charity event. The money will be turned over to the Mayor's Relief committee to aid city and township school children.

ARMY-NAVY CHARITY GRID GAME TO END FEUD?

Army and Navy elevens meeting for the second year for the benefit of charity, despite a break in athletics relations due to a difference over football eligibility, are believed by many observers to have drawn the two schools together sufficiently that hopes may be held for an early reconciliation and a renewal of their old athletic rivalry. Above are the field leaders of the two teams the site of this year's game and the characteristic mascots of the two services elevens.

Army Favored To Upset Navy

Cadet Eleven Looks Too Strong For Mediocre Middy Crew For Today's Game

ARMY'S RECORD IS IMPRESSIVE

By QUENTIN REYNOLDS
International News Service Sports Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—King Football that vigorous sovereign who rules the land from September until December will end his Eastern reign this afternoon when about 73,000 spectators will attend the Army-Navy game to write his yearly obituary.

It promises to be an interesting wake, for the Army and the Navy, in addition to being fairly well matched, always provide the color and tradition which New York loves so much.

Cadets Favored

On its record the strong West Point team which defeated Notre Dame should win easily enough from a naval academy eleven that has tasted the bitter dregs of defeat four times this season. But Army-Navy games are never decided on past records.

Army and Navy teams go into battle with the burning fires of traditional rivalry aflame in their breasts and the result is that this game is always an even money bet. There is little love lost between these service teams and with the eyes of the Army and Naval officers everywhere on them they outdo themselves.

The probable lineup:

Army	Pos.	Navy
King	L. E.	Murray
Price	L. T.	James
Summerfelt	L. G.	Reedy
Evans	C.	Tuttle
Trice	R. G.	Underwood
Suarez	R. T.	Bryan
Kopcsak	R. E.	L. T. Elliott
Carver	Q. B.	Moncure
Secker	L. H.	Kirn
Brown	R. H.	Tschirgi
Kilday	F. B.	Hurley

Officials: Referee, Tom Thorp, Columbia. Umpire, J. P. Egan, Duquesne. Linesman, W. M. Hollenback, Pennsylvania. Field Judge, E. E. Miller, Penn State.

MORNING BLAZE DAMAGES HOME; LOSS IS $300

Central, New Park Avenue Trucks Answer West Falls Street Call

An early morning fire today left a frame dwelling occupied by Kenneth Bailey, 253 West Falls street, damaged to the extent of $300, although city firemen prevented a greater loss by their quick answer to a telephone call which neighbors made. There was no one in the Bailey home.

Originating in a closet on the second floor of the home, the fire burned into the attic section and down between the first floor ceiling joists.

Assistant Fire Chief Clare Stockman said no cause for the fire could be determined.

Damage to the building proper amounted to $200 while the loss suffered by the contents approximated $100, Assistant Chief Stockman said. The house is owned by Emery Digges.

Firemen from Central and the Park Avenue stations battled the blaze from 5:20 a. m., when the alarm was sounded until shortly before 7 o'clock.

The fire necessitated the first run for the city's newly installed American LaFrance engine at the Park avenue station. It is understood that it performed to perfection.

Sparks From New Castle Motor Club

SIDEWALK "EDGER" OFFERS THREAT TO SAFETY

Among the nuisances encountered on the traffic-laden streets today is the "edger" the pedestrian who steps several feet off the curb and stands in the street, while waiting for an opportunity to cross. Aside from endangering himself, this class of pedestrian makes it impossible for motor vehicles to turn properly, and generally interferes with traffic Incidentally, he does not reach the opposide side of the street any quicker than if he had remained on the sidewalk until traffic has passed.

Such instances, contribute in no small way to the annual toll of deaths and accidents, with pedestrians being involved in no less than fifty per cent.

The American Automobile Association points out that the 'edger" is particularly noticeable at controlled crossings, where an officer is stationed or traffic lights are placed to guide motorists and pedestrians alike.

Safety, the objective of persons in every walk of life, demands individual care. The loss of human life and untold suffering can only be curbed by coordinating the flow of traffic and pedestrians. Both have equal rights to the use of the streets.

Every individual can help by not being an "edger."

THE HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

If there is a lower form of animal to be found on the streets and highways of America today than the hit-and-run driver, he will probably not be liscovered until the atom has been split, the fourth dimension taught in our primary schools, and the most remote nebulate in the heavens explored and mapped.

In the feeling he entertains that a violation of the law is proper "if you can get away with it" he is a kinsman to the hop-headed racketeer and the moronic gunman. To him human suffering makes no appeal, even though that suffering be a direct result of his own carelessness of wilfulness.

Everything that members of the New Castle Motor Club can do to apprehend and bring to justice such blood-letting vampires of the highway will be duty well done, even though it will not restore life or health to his victim.

Some people are so proud of their fore-handedness that they can scarcely wait until next Tuesday to display their 1932 license tags.

The world champion optimist has been discovered. He predicts the ultimate union of France and Germany.

The All-American teams have been selected as usual and, equally as usual, no one is satisfied.

In the contract bridge battle of the ages one contestant states that he forgot what was trump. Why, this game cannot be much different from old-style whist!

ABSENCE OF USUAL SEASONAL DECLINE IN ROAD BUILDING AIDS UNEMPLOYMENT

There has not been the usual seasonal decline in road-building this winter and as late as October there were approximately 300,000 men employed on State Highways throughout the country, acording to Ralph W. Bolsinger, President of the New Castle Motor Club, which is affiliated with the American Automobile Association.

Mr. Bolsinger declared that the effort to push the nation's road program as a means of relieving unemployment has been materially aided by mild weather which has enabled engineers to continue work in many sections where the season ordinarily ends in September.

"On the basis of reports from A. A. A. National Headquarters" said the statement, 'there were 221,275 men engaged on State road projects in 35 States during October, and it was estimated that at least 75,000 were at work in the 13 other States. This total of approximately 300,000 indicates that practically every State is pushing its highway program to the limit.

"This is also indicated by construction underway on the Federal-aid system. On October 1, there were 14,314 miles of highway being built on the interstate system, of which 10,659 miles represented new construction and the remaining 3,655 miles additional work on projects previously improved. The estimated total cost was $344,072,068, of which the Federal aid allotment amounted to $155,508,487."

The A. A. A. club executive pointed out that in Pennsylvania, where winter usually interferes with road-building soon after the summer season wanes, there were 27,418 men at work on State roads.

"One of the most hopeful signs" he added, 'is the large number of men at work in the States which have lagged in road-building In Louisiana, for example, there were 18,500 men employed building roads in October.

Did you know that Uncle Sam now uses nearly 38,000 motor vehicles for the Postal Service alone?

If you have a nice bill to pay next month for the repair of a frozen and cracked radiator, don't say the club didn't warn you to get that anti-freeze solution or winter fronts for the car.

A new motorhorn is said to make a noise like the cord on a harp. Isn't that a nasty hint to pedestrians.

What grows less tired the more it works? An automobile wheel.

Automobiles with four doors, four cylinders, and four brakes are not complete without a driver with foresight.

SO ONCE AGAIN—A MERRY, MERRY CHRISTMAS.

BACCHUS OF THE BOULEVARDS

The wine-bibber and the sot may be a ludicrous and humorous spectacle at a ball masque or a bridge party, but on the highway, behind the wheel of an automobile, he becomes a menace to life, limb and property.

He breeds a disrespect for law and order, causes accidents, and makes speedy and comfortable driving an unknown quantity wherever he goes. He is as jumpy and rattle-brained as a rabbit, and like that fur-bearing quadruped is about as prolific, for, while the population normally doubles itself every twenty-five years the drunken driver doubles in numbers every five years.

He now faces the law of the survival of the fittest, and if he is not killed off as a result of his own debauchery, he will sooner or later ensnare himself in the meshes of the net set for him by the police. SO END ALL TYRANTS.

TIRES HEAT IN HIGH

Automobile tires under continuous runs generate such tremendous heat that in some cases their temperature is as high as 12 degrees below boiling or 200 degress Fahrenheit. This was revealed in a series of test runs just concluded. One tire after a continuous run of thirty five miles at fifty miles an hour, registered 200 degrees from an actual thermo-couple reading.

Trying To Lease Gravel In County

Several Owners Of Gravel Supplies In Eastern End Of County Approached

Following publication of the announcement from Harrisburg that the state department was informed of efforts being made to lease up gravel deposits in Mercer and Crawford counties for the next two years, at a small price, it is learned that the same efforts have been made in Lawrence county.

According to information given The News, efforts were made to lease several gravel beds in the eastern end of the county under an option agreement, in which a small price was allowed for the gravel. It is believed that the effort is being made in view of the possibility of demand for gravel for secondary road improvement in this section next year.

Efforts made in Lawrence county were made by persons who held no contracts for road work, The News was informed.

Persons approached in any plan for leasing gravel should investigate the matter, The News was informed.

General Store

Years ago buyers found everything from nails to wearing apparel under the roof of one general store. In this day of specialization the buyer must spend a great deal of valuable time in going from store to store in search of these things he needs.

Classified Ads, like the general store of old, are selling everything under the sun. A few minutes spent in reading the Classified Ads will save you hours of time and many dollars.

Work Resumed On Neshannock Wall

High Water Fails To Halt Improvement Project Along Creek Bank

Work was resumed on the Neshannock creek wall Saturday by unemployed men of the city in spite of the fact that the water in the Neshannock was considerably higher as a result of the rain.

The temporary dam built in the bed of the stream to keep the water away from the wall was heightened and work went ahead as usual.

Around 50 men reported for work Saturday morning and part of them were sent to Gaston Park, which is being cleaned up and the bushes and small trees grubbed out.

NEW YORK STOCKS

Retail Holiday Buying Encourages Market

By W. S. COUSINS
International News Service Financial Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—Selling in the week-end market converged on the Industrial stocks and the Public Utilities. United States Steel bore the brunt of another persistent selling wave and before the session was an hour on its course fell off 2½ points to 43¼, breaking under that level as the market went into the second hour.

The Public Utility stocks were unsettled by persistent rumors of stiff congressional investigations of Gas and Electric rates in American cities, with possible new forms of regulation and price fixing. On the whole the rails and many of the specialties held fairly steady, though Baltimore and Ohio, in the popular rail group, fell off to a new low at 17, down more than 2 points. New York Central and Southern Pacific led a rally in other sections of the rail list.

The week-end business reviews noted an encouraging increase in retail holiday buying. In the foreign exchange market, A 4½ cent drop in the Japanese Yen to 44 cents reflected uneasiness over the anticipated suspension of gold payments by Japan, an embargo on gold shipments, effective Monday, having already been announced by the new cabinet.

Consolidated Gas, Columbia, Northern American, United Corporation, United Gas Improvement, Electric Power, American Light and Power and National Power and Light were among the Public Utility stocks falling to the low prices on the move.

Stock trading up to 11:30 o'clock totalled 1,100,000 shares, but the last half hour saw no repetition of the last-period outpouring of selling such as has been seen in recent sessions.

United States Steel struck bottom for the time being at 43 and closed at 44 for a net loss of 1¾ points for the day and 10 points for the week.

American Tel and Tel closed with a net gain of 1⅛, at 123½. Its loss for the week as a whole was 6½ points. General Motors closed unchanged at 22⅛.

Consolidated Gas was down ½ at 62⅜; American Power and Light down 1¼ at 13½; American Waterworks down about a point at 26⅞; National Power and Light down 1 at 10⅞; Standard Gas down 1⅛ at 28⅝; United Corporation down ¼ at 8⅝.

Bethlehem Steel recovered its early loss and closed unchanged at 21⅝. John Manville was down 1⅞ at 15¾; Worthington Pump down 1¾ at 21¼; Auburn Auto up 2⅜ at 114½; Loews up 1¼ at 27¼.

New York Central led the final spurt in a handful of rails and closed about a point higher, at 27⅞. Baltimore and Ohio, after an early dip to 17, closed at 18⅞, down ¼. Atchison was down 1⅝ at 85⅛; New Haven down ⅞ at 18½; Union Pacific up a point at 74.

Transactions on the big board totalled 1,500,000 shares.

SIX OF SEVEN FUGITIVES ARE ACCOUNTED FOR

The three fleeing convicts, surrounded and captured in a woods, were placed in heavy irons after their return to the prison. The men, Charles Berta, Stanley Brown and Tom Underwood, stubbornly refused in the face of a steady grilling to reveal the manner in which pistols, shotguns and ammunition were smuggled in to them. Nor would they disclose other details of the carefully conceived delivery plot which brought death to their three companions, Will Green, Grover C. Durill and George Curtis.

Green, Leader.

Evidence emerging from the investigation thus far points to Green, 32, an Oklahoma City mail robber serving 25 years, as the leader and the most desperate of the desperadoes who created a reign of terror throughout the countryside as they fled from the prison trading bullets with the pursuing posses.

It was Green who was believed to have shot Warden White when the official made an heroic attempt to wrest a shotgun from the convict's hands. It was Green who dealt out death to his fugitive comrades, Durrill and Curtis, and then destroy his own life in the besieged farmhouse, according to the theory of Coroner Ted L. Sexton.

After a preliminary examination of the convict trio's bodies, the coroner said all three had been killed by .38 calibre pistol bullets. Durrill and Curtis appeared to have been shot at close range. The wounds were in the ears. But the wound that spelled death to Green was just behind the ear, indicating suicide.

Left by his vicious abductors as dead, Warden White, who played the heroic lead in this drama of turmoil and death, was today reported improved at Cushing hospital, where he was taken by possemen who found him lying beside the road. An emergency operation prevented the amputation of his left arm, physicians said.

One Missing.

Meanwhile, a search was organized for Thayer, the missing convict, who is 64 years old. Reinforced by United States army troops from Fort Leavenworth, prison guards were searching the cell blocks for trace of the mysteriously vanished prisoner who was committed to Leavenworth from Oklahoma City along with the three slain convicts. Bloodhounds were yelping and sniffing through the countryside in an effort to pick up his trail. Whether or not his escape was part of the delivery conspiracy was undetermined.

The death of the three convicts and the serious wounding of the warden were not the only casualties of the pursuit and gun battles which followed the escaping sextet's passage through the prison gates under the shield of Warden White and four convict clerks. Minor bullet wounds were also inflicted on Assistant Deputy Warden James Galvin, Prison Guard I. W. Mooney, one of the captured convicts and one of the possemen. Their injuries, however, were slight.

The prison's normal routine was suspended today, while armed soldiers and guards maintained a strict vigilance. Prisoners were kept in their cells. Work was called off.

At Cushing hospital nobody was permitted to see or to speak to the wounded warden.

All Mail Robbers.

The six convicts who engineered the mutiny were all convicted of mail robbery. The three who perished in the farmhouse were serving 25-year terms, and had been in the prison six years and eight months. Berta, who was wounded before he and his two companions were captured, was serving 25 years from San Francisco. Brown, convicted in Fargo, N. D., was serving 15 years, while Underwood, convicted in Duluth, Minn., was serving a 25-year term.

The fleeing convicts split into two parties after they had commandeered three automobiles and one of them had shot Warden White who pleaded for mercy for the occupants of a farmhouse. The prisoners ordered Elizabeth Gates and her brother, Joseph Gates, Jr., 18, to accompany them when the warden spoke up in their behalf. A few minutes later he tried to snatch a shotgun and was shot in the ensuing scuffle. The convicts then fled without taking their intended hostages.

When their automobile struck a horse, they began fleeing on foot as a posse of some 200 men closed in on them, pouring lead before them. Three of the escaping prisoners found refuge in the E. C. Salisbury farmhouse, while the remaining three commandeered horses and began galloping through the woods where they were surrounded and captured.

The battle at the farmhouse raged furiously until the shots from inside ceased. Possemen crept up cautiously, entered the house and discovered the three bodies.

We'll concede the Japanese are clever. They can distinguish between the various Chinese generals.—The Omaha World-Herald.

Congress Belligerent Toward Plan For Debt Moratorium Extension

Congress Will Ratify Debt Moratorium For One Year, But No Longer

Opposition Mounts Against Proposal To Scale Down Debts Due United States

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON Dec. 12.—Congress will reluctantly ratify President Hoover's international debt moratorium for one year, but any extension of it will meet with stiff opposition.

And as for further scaling down of debts which European nations owe the treasury, suggested by Mr. Hoover in his message Thursday, such a tidal wave of opposition to it rolled up in both houses today as to make it appear almost impossible.

Indeed, it appeared questionable today whether congress will even recreate the world debt commission, as proposed by Mr. Hoover. A number of senators and representatives stated publicly they would oppose it, and a great many more said privately they would do likewise when the time came.

Embraces All Factions

Opposition to further reduction in the debts was confined to no party and no group. It broke through party lines and embraced all factions, democratic, republican, and progressive.

For the regular republicans, Senator Watson, the senate leader, and Rep. Will Wood, one of the staunchest administration leaders, declared their opposition to further concessions to Europe. Watson said he was against an extension of the moratorium, and Wood declared he would "never vote to cancel or reduce a dollar" of the debts.

Borah-Johnson

Senator Borah (R) of Idaho, and Senator Johnson (R) of California, were among the progressives who spoke in similar vein.

"I am not in favor of any further extension of the moratorium, I am not in favor of readjusting these debts on a basis of Europe's capacity to pay, and I am not in favor of recreating the war debt commission," said Borah. "There is no business for it to transact."

On the Democratic side, such conservatives as Senator Swanson of Virginia, Rep. Crisp of Georgia, and Rep. Rankin of Mississippi, declared their antagonism to reduction on cancellation.

"The words moratorium, reduction and cancellation all mean the same thing," said Rankin.

Against Concessions

With the treasury facing deficits of $3,540,000,000 during the next two fiscal years, according to President Hoover's budget message, and with the administration calling for a billion dollar a year tax increase, the temper of congress is plainly against any further concessions to Europe.

In fact, it is probable that but for the advance pledges which Mr. Hoover obtained last June difficulty would be encountered in obtaining ratification of the one-year moratorium. Before announcing his plan the President obtained by telephone and telegraph favorable commitments from approximately 80 senators and 300 members of the house. They agreed to it in the belief that it would materially improve world conditions, but lookin back on it now after six months many of them regret their pledge.

Incidentally, two of those who refused to pledge themselves in advance last June, although appealed to by the President, were Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader of the senate, and Rep. Jack Garner of Texas, the new Democratic speaker.

Conditions Worse

What will happen when the question of extending the moratorium arises next May or June, as it inevitably must, was a question that went unanswered around the Capital today.

Instead of getting better, Germany's condition has become worse in the months that have elapsed since the moratorium became effective no one in authority here believes that Germany will be able to resume payments on the first of next July. Nor does anyone believe Germany's creditors, notably France, will resume payments to the United States unless the money with which to do it is forthcoming from Germany.

It constitutes a pretty question for the world's statesmen to solve in the next six months.

Danger Lies In Treating Appendicitis

Don't Take Cathartics For Stomach Ache, Warns Doctor

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

When the large life insurance companies become sufficiently alarmed over the death rate of some disease to make a public protest, the least that can be said is that the danger is real, and in the opinion of those most interested from a financial viewpoint, it can be remedied.

Acute appendicitis is the latest subject of the insurance companies' attention. Eighteen thousand to 20,000 people in the United States die every year from this disease.

"The American public is entitled to an explanation of the extraordinary advance in appendicitis death rates. If there is lack of surgical skill, the matter imperatively demands consideration, for it goes without saying that most of the deaths follow operations." So says the report from the insurance companies.

There are two reasons for the high death rate in acute appendicitis. In the first place, appendicitis is an exceedingly dangerous and treacherous disease. The attitude that the medical profession held about it in the early days of modern surgery, 40 years ago—an attitude that could be summed up as, "We've got this thing licked now, all you have to do is to take the appendix out; the disease need not be feared any more"—has given way in most quarters to one of wholesome respect; to deal with it is not simple, but requires very good judgment. As the report emphasizes, "most of the deaths follow operations."

The second reason for the many deaths in appendicitis is the ingrained habit of people to dose themselves for the bellyache. Everybody knows what to do for cramps—take some salts. The fact that the use of a cathartic is one of the most dangerous forms of treatment in the presence of an acute pain in the abdomen has never been learned by these "evidences." If appendicitis is present, a cathartic simply stirs things up, ruptures the appendix and spreads pus over the peritoneum.

Druggists who treat people who wander into the drug store are badly to blame on this count. I have heard of only one druggist who gave such a patient paregoric; all the remainder gave them salts or castor oil. They might almost as well have given them arsenic or strychnine. If druggists must indulge in this practice, at least let them dispense paregoric instead of a cathartic. Two other pieces of advice could be added; one is to warn the patient not to eat or drink anything until the pain is gone, and the second is to call a doctor.

This is especially applicable to cases where the victim has "just a little stomach ache." One of the treacherous things about appendicitis is that it is not always signalized by prostrating severe symptoms. The pain in many instances is reckoned as hardly more than a vague discomfort.

As if in response to a prayer, my morning mail, which I opened just as I penned the last paragraph, contains a letter from a reader which says, "I have read a prescription in a doctor book of some pills I could take that would cure appendicitis. I have taken one of these pills twice for two nights and they leave me with gripping pains in the right side, where your appendix is supposed to be. The pills contain cascarin, aloin and padophyllium." All of these are cathartics and the very worst thing that could be taken for appendicitis.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed, stamped envelope, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper, or Central Press Association, 1435 East Twelfth street, Cleveland, O. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

"OLD NO. 2" GETS TAP OF PAINTER'S BRUSH THIS WEEK

Although partly retired, and replaced by a fire engine that could better serve the community, Old No. 2 truck, formerly at Park Avenue station, stood in all its glory today among the "bigger boys" at Central station.

Not only did the "hook-and-ladder atmosphere" swell its pride, but the newly-applied, classy red and gray paint gave it a new reason to be proud as well. City workmen have repainted it.

The truck will be kept in reserve for emergency.
